Will Publish Information Regarding Copper Eskimos Of Coronation Gulf Area

Curious stories of strange people dwelling in the Canadian Northland abound in Volume XII of official reports on the Canadian Arctic expedition 1913-14. The volume which will shortly be issued, is the work of Dr. J. H. J. Jenness, ethnologist with the southern party of the expedition. It deals with the little-known Copper Eskimos of Coronation Gulf. It tells of their life, their language and their religious beliefs, of their dwellings, their dance halls (built of snow blocks), their food, how they marry and are given in marriage, of their amusements, their psychology and morality, of the mysterious influence of the Shaman—"the mediator and intercessor between the living Eskimos and the supernatural world of shades and spirits."

There have been various explorations of the Copper Eskimo country since Samuel Hearne travelled overland with a party of Chipewyan Indians to the mouth of the Coppermine River in 1771. Sir John Franklin visited them thirty years later, but it was not till 1916 that the Copper Eskimo first came into conflict with civilized law. Then a Northwest Mounted Police patrol visited the Eskimos and arrested the murderers of two Catholic missionaries who were tried in Edmonton and Calgary.

The report, which is exhaustive, closes with words of warning. It observes that rapid changes are taking place in the culture of the natives. Implements of iron and steel; rifles, fish nets, open boats, European furs and sewing machines; European foods, cheap musical instruments and the development of trapping at the expense of hunting and sealing will effect a complete transformation in the course of a few years. "Already," says Mr. Jenness, "the new culture elements and new culture teaching that are filtering from the west have profoundly modified their social and religious ideas, and before the present generation passes away, the primitiveness of the Copper Eskimo will have ceased to exist. How many will remain by that time, and whether they will be able to take part in the development of the region depends largely on the manner in which we fulfill our trust. For in throwing open their country to outside invasion we have incurred a heavy responsibility towards the natives. We may increase the security of life among them by checking infection and disease, we may protect them from unscrupulous exploitation and from the ravages of intoxicating liquors, but all this will be of little avail unless we immediately take measures to secure them against the introduction of our diseases. The epidemic influenza in 1918 exacted a terrible toll among the Eskimos of Northern Alaska, several settlements being practically wiped out. The Copper Eskimo have no diseases of their own, or at least none were known up to 1916; but white men and Western Eskimos are flocking into their country, and in a few more years perhaps they will fall victims to some of the diseases of our civilization. It may be impossible to prevent this calamity entirely, but at least we could do something by checking a kind of quarantine such as the Danes have done for Greenland. At the present time, the only practicable route into the Copper Eskimo country is by way of the Mackenzie River, and if no one were allowed to go eastward without a certificate from a medical officer it might be possible to save these natives from the scourge of our diseases and a more or less speedy extinction."

Home Owners

No other country in the world shows such a high proportion of home owners in the larger cities as does the Dominion of Canada. Some interesting evidence on this subject has been supplied to the MacLean Building Reports, Limited, by the assessment departments of ten leading Canadian cities. By these figures the total number of houses in the cities is 349,464, and the number occupied by owners total 125,382; occupied by tenants 223,482; the ratio of home ownership is, therefore, 35 per cent.—Financial Post.

Was a Hopeless Case

The College Professor Who Could Not Be Cured of the Betting Evil

A young but exceptionally brilliant professor in a western college was dismissed from the faculty because of his inordinate betting. The president, interested in his career, secured him a position in an eastern college. To the president there he wrote: "The young man has a promising future, and anything you can do to cure him of betting will be a benefit to society."

The professor went east, and was cordially received. Conversation had proceeded but a few minutes when he said to the president, "Till bet you seventy-five dollars you have a wart between your shoulder blades."

The president hesitated. "Young man," he said, "I never bet; but just to teach you a lesson I will take you up."

He thereupon proved to the young man's satisfaction that he was in error, and the professor paid the seventy-five.

The president wrote next relating the incident, concluding: "I hope that I have cured him."

The other wrote back: "I fear the case is hopeless. The very day he left here he bet me one hundred dollars that he could make you take off your shirt."

Memorial for Airmen In Westminster Abbey

Window Overseeks Tomb of Great Britain's Unknown Warrior

British officers and soldiers who died in the air service of the Great War have been given a permanent memorial in Westminster Abbey through the generosity of Mrs. Lewis Bennett, of Wheeling, West Virginia, whose only son was killed in France in 1915 while acting as pilot with the British forces.

The memorial, which was dedicated with impressive services by the dean, consists of a stained glass window with allegorical figures symbolic of the sacrifice of aviation and it contains a figure of the Archangel Michael, who has become known as the patron saint of airmen.

The window is in the west part of the nave, directly overlooking the tomb of Great Britain's unknown warrior, and its inscription reads: "To the glory of God and with proud and thankful memory of those members of the British flying service who fell in the Great War of 1914-1918."

A Little Talk On Thrift

By S. W. Straus, President American Society of Thrift

A great many people whose incomes are small excuse themselves from practicing thrift on the plea that they cannot save anything and maintain a decent standard of living. While it may be true in some isolated cases that circumstances over which they have no control make it impossible for them to get ahead in the world, these instances are exceptional and often a temporary character.

The old saying that, "where there's a will there's a way," applies with full force to the practice of saving money. Those who do not save or who think they cannot are, to a great extent, not honest with themselves. They are unwilling to make certain sacrifices. Their minds are biased by false pride or egotism. Their viewpoint is incorrect. If they would give the problem abundant study they would be able to find ways by which they could save something even though the amounts be very small.

And upon one's ability to find such ways of saving money, depends one's chance of success in life.

This is a phase of the matter that should be given the deepest consideration.

If you cannot find a way of saving money out of your present income, you lack the quality of success.

Success in life is largely a matter of will power, and the man who cannot stiffen his spine and set his jaw with sufficient resoluteness to say, "I will save," lacks the power of overcoming those obstacles which lie in the pathway of every successful person.

Also it must be borne in mind that those who do not take sufficient interest in their own welfare to lay by a certain portion of their earnings for the future do not care enough about real success ever to achieve any substantial place in the affairs of men.

Before there can be success there must be a desire to succeed; and this desire must be so deep that it overcomes above every barrier.

Saving money, therefore, cannot be judged by the amount involved. Its true value lies in the effect it has on the mind and on the character.

Auto License Pay Police Expenses

On the authority of Commissioner Ratway it is stated that the operating expenses of the Manitoba police department will be paid for this year from the additional revenue from automobile licenses. Under the new regulations every provincial police detachment sells license direct to car owners without having to apply to the Provincial Government, and the revenue per day is being collected by the provincial officers.

Send Pictures by Radio

Inventor of Moving Picture Machine Perfects Marvellous Discovery

Moving pictures now may be transmitted by radio from a central broadcasting station into the homes of the people, or happenings on the other side of the world may be flashed into newspaper offices, notorious criminals may be exhibited in one central station and their likeness shown to the police in every city, town and hamlet of the world instantaneously.

This announcement came from the laboratory of C. Francis Jenkins, who, for more than twenty years has been working on this idea, along with other moving picture inventions. He now holds the Elliott Cresson gold medal, awarded by the Franklin Institute of America, as the originator and inventor of the moving picture machine.

Britain Changing Hands

Many Thousands of Acres Sold in Last Few Years

It is not only England that is "changing hands," according to the writer of a most interesting article in the Times, but Scotland and Wales as well. The announcement of a single firm of estate agents in a recent issue of the world's most famous daily journal offered for sale a total area of 73,000 acres. One famous mansion included in the list, Holme Lacy, has been directed, by a series of sales in the past few years, of most of the land that formerly made it rank as one of the largest territorial domains in the country. There remained for sale only a mere trifle of 243 acres—Overseas Daily Mail.

Hungary Will Fulfill Obligations

Agrees to Deliver Cattle Under Peace Treaty Terms

The threat of coercive measures has brought Hungary to terms in the matter of delivery of cattle under the reparations terms of the peace treaty. The Hungarian Minister in Paris has notified the Reparation Commission that his Government promises to fulfill its obligations without further delay.

The commission has accordingly advised the Allied Governments to suspend action against Hungary. May 10 was the latest date allowed Hungary for delivery of the first installment of livestock.

Fifteen Sturdy Macs Are Now Canada's

With bagpipes skirling and a smile of happy anticipation on every face these fifteen stalwart lads from the Highlands first set foot on Canadian soil on April 2nd. They arrived on the Canadian Pacific liner "Tunisienne," and at once went to Chatham, Ontario, from where they will be distributed among the farms of Kent County to learn the intricacies of Canadian farming. They are Highland farmers and North Sea fishermen, and the finest type of immigrants Canada can have, and the advance guard of 150 others just as good who will soon arrive.

Every one of them is a Mac—three MacLeans, three MacDonnells, two MacKenzies, two MacTavishes, a MacPherson, a MacIntyre, and a Macintosh. To add to the Scotch flavor they were conducted by Father MacDonald, special colonization agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway. All are veterans of the Imperial army or navy, and many have been decorated for bravery during the great war.

They were glad to be away from the land of labor strikes and unemployment, and not even the prospect of a ten-hour day, after their eight hours in the old country, dampens their enthusiasm for Canadian farm life. So far they are very favorably impressed with this country, and have not the slightest notion of ever getting home sick. Later on, when their farm experience warrants it, they intend to buy farms of their own.

Diversified cropping systems and a close study of climatic and soil conditions in selection of crops and cultural methods was strongly emphasized as the important feature in crop production by Prof. G. H. Coker, University of Alberta, in an address before the Edmonton Board of Trade.

The speaker declared that there were almost unlimited possibilities in field crop production in the province, but with the wide variation in moisture supply, nature of the soil, etc., the system of farming employed to get the greatest crop returns must necessarily coincide with the existing conditions.

Although moisture was a limiting factor, the speaker emphasized that suitable cropping systems was removing some of the obstacles in some of the drier sections. Where wheat and other cereal crops fall or partly fail because of too early or too late rains, the farmers could then fall back on crops that do not suffer from these conditions. Such crops were winter rye, winter wheat and where conditions were suitable such crops as clover, millet and sunflowers, which to a certain extent could utilize moisture that is quite as likely to come out of season as in season. The system the speaker contended, must be adapted to the conditions and not the conditions to the system.

Speaking of summerfallow, the speaker pointed out that while it has its faults, it still was a most important factor in the dry areas, but its results pointed to a reduction of returns, soil drifting and land ruin. As evidence of this statement, the speaker pointed out that thousands of acres had been lost and are being lost by soil drifting as a result of intensive cultivation and the one crop system farming including summerfallow. Figures given indicated that as a result of 23 years of this single crop farming (including 14 crops and 9 summerfallows), had depleted the soil of one-third of the nitrogen content by actual test.

There was no alternative for summerfallowing. It conserves moisture and moisture is essential, but it is advisable to put back the humus. Less excessive fallowing, and a thin cover crop of oats, rape or winter rye on the fallow was suggested. In extreme cases to plow in a green manure crop may have to be resorted to.

Laguere crops, the speaker pointed out would help to keep up the nitrogen supply.

Opera in Odessa Well Patronized

Many People Attend While Others Starve in Streets

It costs 25 cents, the price of two pounds of bread, for an entire lodge at the Odessa opera. The musicians wear gloves while playing their instruments to keep them from freezing in the heaviest frosts, but the music is exceptionally good.

Long lines of scrawny people wait in line daily before food stations and many are to be seen lying in the streets too weak from hunger to solicit food, yet the opera house is well patronized. The bill at a performance witnessed by the correspondent was the Hugenots. The voices were good and the costumes—hangovers from more prosperous days—were as good as many seen in American opera houses.

Several performances are given each week in a varied repertoire of Italian, German, Russian or purely local Ukrainian operas.

Land for Reforestation

Simcoe County, Ontario, has formally inaugurated its reforestation policy by buying 1,000 acres of sandy land, unfit for agriculture, 10 miles north of Barrie, at a cost of $7,500. Six hundred thousand year-old seedlings of Scotch pine will be eventually planted. Of the young trees, about three years old, 30 acres will be set out this year and in the succeeding years 100 acres annually will be planted until the whole thousand acres are taken up.

MY CANADA

—BY—
ELINOR MARSDEN HETOT

Published by Special Arrangement with the Author

We were hardly seated when the train started with even more than the usual noise and the horses immediately tried to climb the elevator, that stood a few feet to one side of the road. I clutched Mary's arm and choked back a scream. And when order was restored, "Livingstone" turned to us and said, apologetically but, calmly, "I'll have to put these brutes on the plough, they are a trifle fresh." A trifle fresh—our lay old pony and the staid carriage-horses Mrs. Cartstone used to send for "the Restory ladies" were left me with many things to learn, I can plainly see. How glad I am that I did not scream!

We were only a few moments reaching our destination, which was a fairly large two-story wooden building, unplastered, but weather-stained to a lovely grey shade. A stout, energetic-looking woman came out as we drove up and welcomed us with a smile that would have put the Cheshire cat to shame.

"My, but I'm powerful glad to see you! I haven't had ladies to stay in my house since I was a child." And she helped us down, for "Livingstone" could not leave the horses that were a trifle fresh.

"Then I turned to our driver, 'Your charge?'" But he became a hurried terra-cotta colour, and with a hurried

"The obligation is mine," he touched the horses with the whip and was off in a cloud of dust before I could decide whether he was offended, amused, or only shy.

Mrs. Mills (she had introduced herself by a graceful wave of her hand towards the sign-board, "The her") laughed aloud.

"Good Land, if that ain't the funniest thing I ever seen! Don't Livingstone has got more money than you could shake a stick at, an' he thinks that you offered to pay him!" And she went off into another spasm.

"My friend has not been in the country long, and she does not understand all our ways," explained Mary with dignity.

"No offence, Miss, no offence! But come right in. You'll be tired with your trip, an' a bit of dinner won't hurt you none. I'll warrant," said Mrs. Mills. And she caught up a bag in each hand and hurried inside, Mary and I following with becoming hesitations.

The room we entered was large and airy, but beyond that little can be said in its favour. The floor was bare and none too clean, the walls were unplastered. The furniture consisted of a long narrow table, several chairs painted a bright yellow, and a stove that gave no evidence of having been polished since it left the factory. This was apparently the dining-room for the end of the table was covered with a turkey-red cloth and laid for two.

Mrs. Mills never ceased talking. "I'll have some dinner ready in a jiffy," Mr. Hartford—him as is the English Church missionary—ain't come for his yet, an' you can eat together, he'll be glad of company. Come right upstairs with me now and lay off your hats. Do you want one room or two?"

"One will do," said Mary. "We shall be here for only one night and we should like to be as comfortable as we can."

"You could just as easy have two," replied Mrs. Mills, as she preceded us to the open stairs, which rose from one side of the room. "Room's about all we've got here, and we've got lots of it inside an' out. This house was built last summer when the railroad was being put through. All the men in the construction camp, for their meals here an' some of the houses sleep; but business is slow now, an' if it wasn't for the steady boarders I've got, I'd be down an' out. But it's all in the game, an' the Lord helps them what helps themselves, an' they do say that an elevator gang is coming here next month, an' that'll help the acheching some as Mr. Mills used to say." Mrs. Mills is apparently a philosopher in her own way.

"There's two empty rooms, an' you can have whichever one you want. Seem as it's for only one night, I could wish they were more fancy like, but you'll sleep just as good 'n' guess, Miss—Land sakes! I'm that tired that I clean forgot to ask your names!"

We gave the required information and then entered the first room. It contained an iron bed, a washstand on a basin and jug, and a small and uncomplimentary mirror. These things were what one might call the physical features, but in addition we saw two suitcases, rather the worse for wear, and—hanging on the row of hooks that did duty as wardrobe—several suits of men's clothes. Immediately the room took on a personality and I asked to see the other one.

"Then things," said Mrs. Mills in reply to my look of inquiry, "belongs to a drummer." "Travelling salesman," whispered Mary "what stayed here for a week in the winter. I was surprised from him looks that he weren't none to honest—he was one of them kind that his eyes would have run together if it had been for his nose, an' 'n' sure enough, first thing I knew he went off on the afternoon train without paying his bill."

We crossed the hall to the second room, which was furnished in the same manner as the first one, but which showed no traces of its former occupants.

"This will do nicely," I said. And now, Mrs. Mills, if you could let us have dinner at once."

"Bless your heart! I'm so glad to see a new face that I'd talk all day if somebody didn't put the brakes on," she interrupted. "But, being as you've reminded me, I'll go now. Come down to the dining-room just as soon as you're ready." And with this she hurried away.

In less than time it takes to write about it, Mary had opened her bag and taken from it a case of soap and a roll of paper towels and raised the window to its full height; and then by a judicious distribution of our worldly goods she gave the room an almost homelike air.

"Wash your face and hands and tuck up your frunt locks, Elinor," she advised. "And don't forget Mennent—an English Church missionary sounds rather interesting. Aside from its efficacy in the matter of sunburn, talcum powder is a great moral support."

As usual, I followed Mary's advice; and then sought in vain for a place in which to empty the water so that Mary might have her turn.

"What do you suppose an unprepared night is intended for?" asked that inventive young person. "Here, hand me the basin. I'm a great moral support."

"Well," drawled a pleasant English voice from the ground below, "what tricks are you young scamp up to now? When I was a youth I was taught to respect the clergy, but in this enterprising country"

"Oh, Mary," I gasped, "that must be Mr. Hartford! Do you think you hit him?"

"I don't think so," she replied coolly, "and even if I did he will soon dry in this hot sunshine. Probably he was sent out here by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Heathen, and in that case he would expect scalping at least—a little bit of cold water will not hurt him."

THAT there are Physicians who specialize on Infant ailments you know. All Physicians understand Infant troubles; all Physicians treat them. It is his profession, his duty, to know human ills from the Stork to the Great Beyond.

But in serious cases he calls in the Specialist. Why? He knows as every Mother knows, or ought to know, that Baby is just a baby, needing special treatment, special remedies.

Can a Mother be less thoughtful? Can a Mother try to relieve Baby with a remedy that she would use for herself? Ask yourself; and answer honestly!

Always remember that Baby is just a baby. And remembering this you will remember that Fletcher's Castoria is made especially for Infants and Children.

The False and the True.

Advertising by the use of large space, the expenditure of huge sums of money have placed on the market, have put in your home, perhaps, many articles that today have been discarded, as you will readily admit.

Do you recall anything that has more modestly appealed to the public than has Fletcher's Castoria: modest in all its claims, pleading at all times—and truthfully—for our babies?

The big splash, the misleading claims may win for a time, but the honest truth-telling advertiser is like the old story of the tortoise that beat the hare.

Mothers everywhere, and their daughters, now mothers, speak frankly, glowingly, enthusiastically in praise of Fletcher's Castoria. Speak of it lovingly as a friend that has brought comfort, cheer and smiles to their little ones.

To them: to these true mothers no argument can induce them to set aside their bottle of Castoria, their old friend, that they might try even another and unknown remedy for babies. I did so, and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last fifteen years. I may also add that I have used Dr. Chase's Catarrhose for piles with excellent results."

Wheat Board Question Will Be Taken Up After Budget Debate

Ottawa.—The situation as regards the passage of legislation establishing a wheat board was the subject of questions put in the House of Commons by Hon. H. H. Stevens. Mr. Stevens recalled that the reference of this question to a special committee was made on March 27 with indications of a need of haste. A report was made by May 26. It involved legislation by Parliament and also by provincial legislatures in order to provide for handling this year's wheat crop. Yet the resolution had been allowed to lie on the order papers for seven days. Mr. Stevens wanted to know what was the reason for delay and whether it had anything to do with the somewhat extraordinary action by the committee on Friday last in rescinding a former motion.

The Prime Minister replied that there was no intention to delay the discussion upon the wheat board after the budget debate was finished. Just as soon as the end of that debate was reached, the Government would be glad to take up the consideration of the report of the agriculture and colonization committee. Mr. Stevens inquired whether it

The Prime Minister replied that before this report appeared on the order paper he had intimated that it was the intention to give precedence to the budget debate. It was thought desirable to carry that arrangement through.

Wheat Board Certificates

Many Participation Certificates Are Still Outstanding

Ottawa.—There are yet nearly $210,000 worth of wheat board participation certificates outstanding, according to a return tabled in the House by Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in answer to a question asked by C. C. Davison. Progress since member for North Battleford. A total of $560,000 was turned over to the Federal Government by the Canada Wheat Board from surplus account. Mr. Davies was informed, and also $175,000 from participation certificates. The total value of outstanding participation certificates on May 22, 1922, was $209,526.84.

Applications for payment on outstanding participation certificates are still being received, and are being paid by the Canada Wheat Board. It was stated. The questions when such payments will be discounted has not yet been considered.

Mr. Davies was also informed that the Canada Wheat Board had recommended that the amount of $560,000 transferred from surplus account should be distributed to the provincial governments pro rata, on the basis of the quantity of wheat delivered to the board by the producers in each province, such money to be used for the immediate relief of distressed farmers in the various provinces and that any money remaining on account of unpaid certificates should be used for research work, particularly for the prevention of black rust in wheat.

Policy Of Moderation Says Lloyd George, In Dealing With Germany

London.—With Germany undefiant, Premier Lloyd George had planned to make a brief statement on reparations in the House of Commons, but when John Robert Clynes, Labor member, opened the debate and attributed the present difficulties to the Government's election pledges of 1918, the Prime Minister launched into a lengthy defense of the reparations commission and the treaty of Versailles.

Mr. Lloyd George praised the German attitude towards the reparations commission and said so long as she was not defiant, Germany could count on Britain's sympathy and understanding of the difficulties in meeting the treaty conditions. He declared, however, that there was no cause for disagreement between France and Great Britain for should Germany refuse to attempt to fulfill the commission's proposals, Great Britain's place would be at the side of the Versailles signatories despite the misrepresentations which were being made.

Great Britain believed in the traditional policy of moderation and fulfillment, continued the Prime Minister, and he gave warning that isolated action on the part of any one of the allies would be disastrous to the centenary between them.

"It is the policy pursued after Waterloo toward France when Prussia and Russia and other victors urged that France be dismantled," said Mr. Lloyd George. "The Government in that day refused to countenance such a policy; we are pursuing the same course. But if Germany is defiant, if she should say 'this treaty we decline to carry out,' it would be different. A German policy of non-fulfillment would be a policy of immediate disaster."

"It is not a question of France acting alone, if there is defiance of the Versailles treaty. We are signatories to the treaty, which the House of Commons ratified. We are committed to it. In spite of all misrepresentations we still stand for the policy of moderation and fulfillment."

THIN BLOODED PEOPLE

Need a Tonic to Enrich the Blood and Restore the Health.

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded, just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers, comes on so gradually that anyone takes a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of trouble due to thin blood. With pure air and good food these blood-enriching pills are the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. M. Chase, of Trenton, Ont., who says: "I can highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who suffer from anaemia and nervous exhaustion. For three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and until I began taking these pills no treatment seemed to do more than give me temporary relief. I had read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were doing for others and finally decided to try them myself. I further decided to give them a fair trial and kept on taking them regularly for several months and I am glad to say have derived permanent relief. I feel that I can safely and honestly recommend this wonderful medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
